Lessons from emerging trends in Leadership

We have seen a series of political uprisings in African countries and the world at large in the recent months, most if not all emanating from conflict in leadership. We surely have a lesson or two to learn from this. The world is becoming more and more enlightened about who they would consider a good leader. On the other hand technology is catching up with anybody who thinks he/she can manipulate voter statistics to their advantage and get away with it. Even the Law of the land has no chance left for corrupt leaders. This is a sign of a more transparent world.

This translates to all other areas of life, including business. The public is now more aware of what they want versus what is on offer by marketers. Buyers now want full and ready access to any information pertaining to the relationship between them and the seller. Pan Africa Life is happy to inform its customers, investors and all other stakeholders that soon we shall launch a new IT system that is going to make their lives much easier. It will allow the access to, among other things ..... via our website (L.S to fill up).

Peace!

Our beloved country Kenya has gone through quite a bit since 2007. No need to mention. Even though we still have wounds to heal such as IDP resettlement, the most important is that we now are at peace and have a new constitution to govern our country a milestone that has taken us over 40 years to achieve. Peace and order is what drives Nation to grow a sustainable economy. I would like to take this opportunity to ask my fellow Kenyans to remain calm and maintain peace as the Ocampo Saga unfolds. Whatever shape it takes, it should not drive us to lose our hard earned peace and cohesion as a country!

Condolence to our Japanese brothers and sisters

We, Pan Africa Life would like to extend our condolences to our ailing brothers and sisters in Japan after the losses caused by the Earthquake in March 2011. May God comfort and restore them.
